

OXFORD ART SOCIETY

Members' Open Exhibition, Said Business School, Oxford, October 2010

Left to right, Muriel Mallows OAS, Mayoress of Oxford; John Goddard, Lord Mayor of Oxford and Jago Pryce, Chair of Oxford Art Society

Opening the exhibition

Jago Pryce spoke of her delight with the quality of work displayed and thanked all who had helped behind the scenes. Jago introduced the Lord Mayor who formally opened the Show.

He talked of his introduction to art whilst at school and remarked that his wife and two daughters were all artistic and spoke of his appreciation of art. His wish was to see Oxford more visually aware with a greater emphasis on sculpture around the City, along with his desire to see a new art gallery to host Society and other art shows - this was greeted by a rousing round of applause by all present!

The Lord Mayor paid tribute to the Society, founded in 1891, with its strength of purpose and skill in this century.

Photos and words: Stephen Gray